

1. We demand clear and consistent access to condoms in all New York CITY public high schools.

- New York City mandate requires high schools to have Health Resource Rooms, staffed by trained teachers, with condoms available to students for at least 10 periods a week.
- We demand compliance with this mandate, as well as expansion of condom access, distribution of both female and male condoms and adequate training for their correct and consistent use.

2. We demand that information and training on how to correctly use condoms is made available.

- Health Resource Rooms must stock lubricant, male and female condoms, multilingual information on how to use condoms and how to access free condoms outside of schools.
- All teachers, starting with those who staff the Health Resource Rooms, must be trained to give condom demonstrations, and must do so when students ask for condoms.
- Demonstrations of the correct use of female and male condoms must be included into HIV prevention curricula and taught each term in classrooms.

3. We demand clear and transparent evaluation and oversight of school's compliance with the mandates.

- Compliance with the mandates must be evaluated at the school and regional level.
- Evaluation and oversight must be conducted by each school's HIV Team as well as DOE staff, and incorporate broader student input about what they are really experiencing.
- Evaluation must assess if current mandates are adequate for the needs of students, or if access to condoms and education should be expanded.
- The Department of Education must appoint an HIV Director to coordinate mandate compliance, curricula implementation, and ongoing training and support.
